17	Iowa	No. They haven't totally written off the idea, but have no specific plans to extend foster care. They currently serve adults in foster care until 18 or up to 20, if they are working on a GED or diploma. Also, for youth 18-21, they have a non system aftercare program called Preparation for Adult Living (PAL), which provides youth case management and a stipend until 21 if they age out of state paid foster care, which is similar, but not officially foster care. What is the correct terminology in this case for people over age 18? Youth, or adults? 25	Minnesota	We have had some discussion of this especially since some of our youth in extended foster care wish to attend post-secondary education in other states. However, not all states are participating in extended foster care so I think it would be unlikely that they would agree to supervision of Minnesota youth in extended care if they did not participate in extended foster care. Minnesota would consider a new ICPC placement request from another state for youth in extended foster care up to age 21.	21	DNA	DNA	DNA
